Because I am old (68) I remember the growth of computer technology and it has been great. Microsoft has led the way. But along the way there has been a lot complaining about the leadership. As I remember it would come from people who were experts. It seemed they had control of their world and didnt want it to change. But technology is about change and therefore what ever Microsoft did it made the present better and pushed us into the future. From my point of view we should stop all law suites against Microsoft and get on with business.
